

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. 57. THE ERA OF THE REFORMATION. Cartoon by Baron Wilhelm von Kaulbach. Exhibited at Paris in 1867 at the Great Exposition, and purchased by Mr. B. M. C. Durfee, of Fall River. Kaulbach painted one of the six great frescos in the new museum at Berlin from this cartoon. Height, 23 feet; width, 26 feet.

A notice in the "London Art Journal" says: "We must look at the assemblage as a grand commemoration, in the spirit, of the vicissitudes and struggles of the Reformation, from the rising of its morning star (Wickliffe) to the cessation of wholesale persecution on account of religious opinions. . . . The assembly is represented as being held in an imposing interior, — that of a cathedral of the first class. In the centre is the choir; side aisles open on the right and left, and from the nearest spaces to the upper gallery, the vast expanse is thronged with groups of men in every variety of picturesque costume, all earnest in the business in hand."

We find here, as in all Kaulbach's great works, not only the actual subject, but everything, however remote, which ingenuity could bring into connection with it. Kaulbach has not only represented the men of the Reformation proper, such as Luther, Zwingli, Justus Jonas, Melancthon, and Calvin, but also those early church reformers who heralded their coming and prepared their way. Abèlard, Arnolfo da Brescia, and Waldus, of the 11th and 12th centuries; Wickliffe and Tauler, of the 14th century; Huss and Savonarola of the 15th, who had struggled against papal pretensions and served the cause of religious freedom, had a prescriptive right to place upon a stage dedicated to the Reformation; but Kaulbach has introduced others who are much less directly connected with it, such as the Rennaissance Humanists, artists, authors, scientists, and discoverers, who belong to it only on the ground that they opened to the world those stores of ancient thought long hidden in the forgotten and neglected works of the great Greek and Roman authors; that they studied the recovered masterpieces of antique art; investigated causes and effects in nature; and extended geographical knowledge. Thus they widened the minds of men, ploughed the great intellectual field, and, like Cadmus, sowed those dragons teeth in the furrows, which, when the time came, sprang up in the shape of armed men ready to overthrow the barriers which impeded the free expansion of human thought. Among the Humanists are Petrarch, Erasmus, Reuchlin, Picoella Mirandula, and Marsilio Ficino; among the artists, Lionardo da Vinci, Albert Durer, Michel Angelo, and Raphael; among the authors, Machiavelli, Shakespeare, and Cervantes; among the scientists and philosophers, Paracelsus, Lord Bacon, Harvey, and Leonard Fuchs; among the discoverers, Columbus, Drake, and Michael Behaim; among the astronomers, Copernicus, Galileo, and Tycho Brahe. Lastly there are the sovereigns, electors, and leaders in the Reformation, William of Orange, Barneveldt, Admiral Coligny, Cranmer, Queen Elizabeth, John the Constant, and his son Johann Friedrich, brother and nephew of the Elector of Saxony, etc. etc. The spectator will be able, by looking at the photograph in front of the cartoon, to recognize all those distinguished personages and others among the more than 80 figures drawn in it. Among them is the painter himself, in the right-hand upper corner, ascending the stairs to assist Albert Durer, whom he thus acknowledges as his chosen master.

58. ST. JOHN IN THE DESERT. Cristoforo Allori, b. 1577, d. 1621. Loaned by Mr. Abraham Bigelow. Purchased in Florence out of the gallery of the Marquis Panciatichi, where it had hung since it was painted.

59. THE DESCENT FROM THE CROSS. Cartoon. Raphael Mengs, b. 1728, d. 1779. Loaned by Mr. George Chickering, who purchased it at Florence out of the Corsini Palace. It formerly belonged to the Rinuccini family.

This very fine work is of great interest, as being the painter's last work.

60. THE HOLY FAMILY. Annibale Caracci, b. 1560, d. 1609. Loaned by Mr. George Walker, of Springfield, Mass.

This picture, which was painted at Parma when Annibale Caracci studied to imitate Corregio, was bought at Bologna from the Signori Conti by Niccolo Farlotti. It was brought to this country about forty years ago.

61. MADONNA AND CHILD. Cima da Conegliano. Loaned by Mr. Charles Shimmmin.
62. PORTRAIT OF THE SECOND LORD BALTIMORE (b. 1605, d. 1675), presented by Queen Anne to the city of Annapolis in 1703. Owned by Titian R. Peele, Esq., who attributes it to Vandyck, b. 1599, d. 1641.

Extract from the Annals of Annapolis, by David Ridgely: "In 1703, Anne Arundel's town (so called in 1650 from the maiden name of Lady Baltimore), being incorporated as a city, received the name of Annapolis in honor of Queen Anne, who had ascended the throne in 1702. The Queen had Sir Godfrey Kneller (b. 1648, d. 1726), the court painter of that day, paint her portrait, and sent it, with the portrait of Cecilius Calvert, 2d Lord Baltimore, proprietary of the province, and founder of the State of Maryland, a gift to the City of Annapolis, in recognition of the compliment of naming the city after her."

The portrait of Queen Anne disappeared during the Revolution, but that of Lord Baltimore remained in the State House at Annapolis until 1823, where it was found by Charles Wilson Peale, the painter, stowed away in a lumber room, and in a most degraded condition. Mr. Peale told the aldermen that it was disgraceful to treat the portrait of the founder of their State with such neglect; and on finding them quite indifferent as to the matter, offered if they would give it to him, to paint portraits of six of the Governors of Maryland elected since the Revolution. His offer was accepted, the portraits were painted and delivered in 1824, and in June of that year Mr. Peele had the portrait of Lord Baltimore in his possession at Philadelphia. He then proceeded to clean and restore it with great care. In a letter written to his son in Feb. 1824, he says that he has completed the operation, and adds, "It is a very highly finished picture, but I am uncertain by what painter. Rembrandt (his son) and some others, think it was painted by Sir Godfrey Kneller," etc. etc. The present proprietor, Mr. Titian R. Peale, writes to say that the picture "has been attributed to Vandyck, the Court artist at the time represented, the embarkation in 1633, and also to Sir Godfrey Kneller, the artist at Court in 1703, who painted the portrait of Queen Anne, which she sent with it to Annapolis." For sale.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE MUSEUM CATALOGUE.

ROOM 2.

Objects recently added to the collections exhibited in the second room.

CASE H. — Malachite Box, presented to Mr. G. B. Fox of Lowell, by the Russian Government. Loaned by Mr. Fox.

CASE K contains three magnificent specimens of Limoges Enamel, purchased at Paris by the late Baron H. de Triqueti, and loaned to the Museum by the Trustees of the Athenæum.

1. Pitcher (Aiguière) made by Leonard de Limoges (b. 1532, d. 1574).

2. A very beautiful hollow "plaque" made by Jean Courtois (fl. 1568). Subject—Goliath going forth to Battle. Enamels of this kind are called "surpaillon or clinquant," from the gold or silver leaf placed under certain parts of the draperies and accessories, and covered with a translucent enamel. The metal shining through the enamel produces great brilliancy of effect.

Such enamels are extremely rare, and of very great value.

3. A plaque by Nardon Penicaud (fl. 1550). Subject—Descent from the Cross.

The antique marble vase, on a pedestal in the middle of the room, was found in the environs of Naples. It was purchased at Paris by M. de Triqueti, and has been loaned by the Trustees of the Athenæum. It is of Luni (Carrara) marble, and cannot be older than the Empire, as the Luni quarries were not worked by the Romans before the time of Augustus.

Specimens of Fayence and Porcelain loaned by Mr. G. W. Wales, placed upon shelves and hung against the wall.

1. Large Platter Rouen. 18th century. Fayence, called "la double Corne."

2, 3      2 Platters. Delft.      18th century. Fayence.
